DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

1. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

- (a) the invention was known or used by others in this country, or patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country, before the invention thereof by the applicant for a patent.
- (e) the invention was described in a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention thereof by the applicant for patent, or on an international application by another who has fulfilled the requirements of paragraphs (1), (2), and (4) of section 371(c) of this title before the invention thereof by the applicant for patent.

The changes made to 35 U.S.C. 102(e) by the American Inventors Protection Act of 1999 (AIPA) and the Intellectual Property and High Technology Technical Amendments Act of 2002 do not apply when the reference is a U.S. patent resulting directly or indirectly from an international application filed before November 29, 2000. Therefore, the prior art date of the reference is determined under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) prior to the amendment by the AIPA (pre-AIPA 35 U.S.C. 102(e)).

2. Claim 10 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Djordjevic US 6,694,950. The reference discloses In a high-pressure fuel pump for a fuel injection system, having a housing, having a low-pressure inlet , having a supply chamber in which the fuel is compressed, having an intake valve (68) between the supply chamber and the low- pressure inlet, a valve member (68) of the intake valve being braced against a piston via a compression spring disposed in the supply chamber, and having a high- pressure outlet, the improvement wherein the valve member of the intake valve (68) is embodied as a ball. Radial fuel pumps having inlets valves are well known in the art. Moreover, ball valves are well known and commonly used as check valves. Claim 10 is written in Jepson form, wherein the improvement is merely using a known ball valve which is shown in the reference.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

4. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

5. Claim 10 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over WO 03/048564. The reference discloses In a high-pressure fuel pump for a fuel injection system, having a housing, having a low-pressure inlet , having a supply chamber in which the fuel is compressed, having an intake valve (38) between the supply chamber and the low- pressure inlet, a valve member (38) of the intake valve being braced against a piston via a compression spring disposed in the supply chamber, and having a high- pressure outlet. Radial fuel pumps having inlets valves are well known in the art. Moreover, ball valves are well known and commonly used as check valves. Therefore, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art to modify the valve 38 to utilize a known ball valve since using a ball valve as a check valve is well known and conventional.

6. Claims 11-27 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Djordjevic or WO 03/048564. The claimed features such as spring sizes, ball sizes, seat angles, etc are considered to be obvious matters of design choice to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time of the invention since they are not critical to the operation of the device and can be modified in accordance with design parameter of the pump system.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

7. The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

8. Claims 26-27 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention. Claims 26-27 are in improper form and therefore indefinite.

Conclusion

9. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. Note the various pumps having ball valves and inlet valves with springs.
